Rappahannock Regional Jail

From the Deportation Data Project, reporting ICE records

Other concerns:

- Detainee intake process automatically involves ICE for all suspected immigrants

- Other regional jails in Northern Virginia have limited ICE involvement only in situations where a person has been charged or convicted of a felony (in accordance with state law)

Caroline Detention Facility

The Caroline Detention Facility is one of two major ICE immigration jails in Virginia.

- It is a regional jail in Virginia, effectively owned and operated by Caroline County. It contracts with ICE through an intergovernmental service agreement, but is not owned and operated by ICE.

- As a regional jail, the Caroline Detention Facility is subject to state law.

- The facility is only 26 miles away from Fredericksburg.

- Graph from the Deportation Data Project

